Programme

New dwelling: multi-storeys dwelling

About

The building, located in the countryside, houses ten flats. The volumes perfectly fit the existing farm. The peculiar lay-out delimits an inner yard that recalls the atmosphere of former days. A long basement wall encloses the premises. Access to the basement is provided by a ramp.

The outer stone facing is made of baked clay brick and cleaved blue stone. The use of both materials gives a mixed sense of lightness and density.

The large glazing overlooking the street and the glass box that pierces the roof sculpture the space proportions. The occupants are in direct contact with the outdoors and enjoy a view onto the village.
