In a residential neighbourhood in Brussels, clients want to live in a wooden house with high ceilings and a large separate workshop, focusing on the contact with the abundant vegetation from the garden.

About

Circulation around a central void desserts each room at a different level, and leads to the workshop with a covered terrace. Most of the rooms are glazed or with sliding doors and offer views towards the garden.

OTHER PROJECTS :

The prefabricated structure in massive wood provides stability and a sense of robustness. The low energy construction is built of energy efficient materials.
