

News

EXHIBITION : 4X4 : 4 VISIONS ON THE NORTH-SOUTH JUNCTION

Address

Palais des Beaux-Arts Rue Ravenstein 23, 1000 Bruxelles

Variously seen as a technical exploit, an urban wound, an asset, or a scar, the link constructed a few decades ago between the North and South railway stations in Brussels continues to divide opinions today. Belgium's busiest section of railway line, the connection is now close to saturation point. With a view to planning for the future of this underground but essential aspect of mobility and life in Brussels, a number of architectural practices have been invited by the Master Architect of Brussels to take a look at the issues.

They are Bureau Vers plus de bien-être (V+), Studio 012 (Bernardo Secchi and Paola Vigano)/Karbon, 51N4E/L'AUC/BBS and Xaveer De Geyter Architecten

Date

07/12/2012 > 27/01/2013

Publication

27/11/12

Website

<http://www.bozar.be/activity.php?id=11663&selectiondate=2012-11-27>