The documentation relating to the works must be submitted online, through the link provided by mail. It is essential to pre-register on the web in order to deliver the requested documents.

Who may submit the requested documents?

The Architects responsible for the proposed works.

Those proposals in which the members of the jury have participated in their personal capacity (or their companies) may not be accepted.

Who decides in which of the two categories the works are submitted?

The Architects responsible for the proposed works.

The jury can estimate to change the category of the works if they consider it.

Who is granted the 10.000 euros cash award for each of the two categories?

The Architects responsible for the winning works.

Should the winning works have been proposed by clients, collaborators or residents, will they receive any kind of acknowledgement?

Yes. In this case they will be invited to attend the prize-giving ceremony, during which they will be acknowledged for their contribution to the Simon Architecture Prize.

May the Simon Architecture Prize be declared void?

No. It is the obligation of the present edition's Jury to announce five finalist works and select one as the winner in each of the two categories.

The competition encourages participation from architects, urban planners and landscape architects, but also the general public. Any individual may nominate that piece of architecture, that architectural space that has caught their eye, or which has special relevance for them. Entries are open to all projects finished in the two years previous to the prize, and which were constructed in Europe, Mexico or Brazil.

Once the form is completed, the authors of the work will receive an email within a few days.
